The scholarship was created to honor the memory of 5-year-old Eric Dostie, a boy with hemophilia who was tragically murdered on August 27, 1994. Awards will provide financial assistance to students who either have hemophilia or a similar bleeding disorder or who have a family member with a bleeding disorder. Students must be citizens of the United States and enrolled full-time in an accredited two- or four-year college program.

Patrick M. Schmidt, chief executive officer of FFF Enterprises, said, "It is enlightening to read about the aspirations of each of these young people. I congratulate all of them and pray that, in Eric's honor, this scholarship gives them the motivation to achieve their educational goals."

As part of the application process, applicants submitted an essay describing how their education will be used to serve humankind and encourage self-improvement and enrichment.
