Key Highlights from the Canada Gluten-Free Foods & Beverages Market Report:

Growing Demand for Clean Label and Free-from Gluten-free Products

- Consumers are becoming aware of the adverse health effects of gluten grains like wheat and barley. Therefore, they are opting for organic, natural, and clean-label products, thereby increasing the demand for gluten-free food.
- The rising cases of celiac disease are also boosting the demand for gluten-free food products. Therefore, consumers are investing in free-from food and beverages.

Bakery Segment to Drive the Market

- The demand for gluten-free food has increased due to the increase in demand for gluten-free baked products. Bakery products are a staple diet among Canadians. The convenience and nutrition profile associated with them are factors driving their demand in the market. Therefore, due to growing consumer awareness of consuming gluten-free baked goods, such bakery products are expected to witness market growth.
- Various associations in Canada are introducing programs to maintain the diet of Canadian consumers, thereby providing opportunities for the gluten-free bakery products market.
