

Bladder Scanners Market Revenues to Reach USD 202.33 billion by 2028 - Market Size, Share, Forecasts, & Trends Analysis Report by Mordor Intelligence

According to a new market research report titled “Bladder Scanners Market Report \(2023-2028\),” the market is estimated at USD 150.48 billion in 2023. It is expected to register a CAGR of 6.10% during the forecast period.

A bladder scanner is a non-invasive ultrasound device providing a virtual two or three-dimensional (3D) or (2D) image of the bladder, along with the volume of urine retained within the bladder for diagnosing, managing, and treating urinary outflow dysfunction. The expanding prevalence of urological diseases is boosting the growth of the market studied. The expanding burden of cancer-related to the urinary tract establishes the need for diagnostics and scanning devices, thereby propelling the market’s growth. Likewise, the increasing accessibility to technologically advanced scanners is also propelling the market's growth.

Key Highlights from the Bladder Scanners Market Report:

Portable Bladder Scanners Segment to Record Significant Adoption

- Portable bladder scanners use automated technology to indicate bladder volume digitally, including post-void residual (PVR) volume, along with providing three-dimensional images of the bladder.
- An important advantage of the portable ultrasound bladder scanner is to be a user-friendly diagnostic procedure with high-end accuracy. Portable bladder ultrasound scanners are reliable, cost-effective, and non-invasive. The multiplied occurrence of cancer related to the urinary tract is also creating the need for diagnostics and scanning devices, propelling the growth of the market studied.

North America Expected to Hold Major Share

- North America is estimated to dominate the bladder scanner market internationally, owing to the rising prevalence of urological diseases and high healthcare expenditure. New innovative product approvals, mounting urological disorders, increasing diagnostic procedures, and increasing usage of mobile portable ultrasound devices in clinics and hospitals are contributing to the growth of the bladder scanners market.
- As per the National Institutes of Health data, updated in September 2021, chronic kidney disease (CKD) influences nearly one-seventh of all adults in the United States (i.e., 37 million people). Heart disease and a family history of renal failure are two more risk factors for kidney disease.

What are the Latest Developments in the Bladder Scanners Market?

- In April 2023, the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences (UAMS) launched a new Urology Center in Premier Medical Plaza in West Little Rock, United States. It offers specialized treatment for complex kidney stones, reconstruction of the urinary system, and men's health, specifically erectile dysfunction, besides top-quality routine urology services, comprising bladder scanning and others.

- In January 2022, ClariusMobile Health launched a third-generation product line of high-performance, handheld wireless ultrasound scanners for all medical specialists, including ClariusHD3, in the United States.
